In the past few years, SME Exchanges witnessed tremendous growth in terms of subscription, investor classes, number of SMEs filing offer documents and getting listed, and the like. Looking at annual performance of the SME Capital Market, it is safe to say that the SME IPOs are catching up in record time.

New Age Businesses

In the recent times, we have witnessed a flurry of activities in the capital market across sectors unlike earlier years where fund raising was concentrated in particular sectors. Moreover within the past few years there are a number of SMEs that have brought potential IPOs on the avenue. Investors are attracted to new concepts and emerging innovation in a business and its productions. To name a few – Panache DigiLife Limited is an SME engaged in manufacturing of varied range of IT infrastructure products, embedded solutions and electronic designs; Jiya Eco Products Limited is into non-conventional bio-fuel; DRA Consultants is into providing infrastructure consultancy; Mangalam Seeds Limited is an SME engaged in producing improved and hybrid seeds, Majestic Research Services and Solutions Limited provides market research services. These SMEs brought new types of industries to the platforms and these entrepreneurs are bringing new and innovative products based on the changing era and consumer taste which is why these businesses possess huge potential and are garnering better response on the SME Capital Market.

SME IPOs churning better returns irrespective of size

SMEs having a paid up capital of Rs. 1 crore can seek listing its shares on NSE Emerge and a company having Rs. 3 crores can seek listing on BSE SME Exchange. And there are SMEs with a turnover less than Rs. 10 Crores but are providing handsome returns to the investors. A classic case is MRSS India. With turnover less than Rs. 5 crore, the company came out with an IPO of Rs. 1.4 crore at the rate of Rs. 12.75 per share and got listed on 16th July, 2015. The market price of the company currently hovers around Rs. 405/- per share. It came up with an FPO in December, 2016 at a price of Rs. 114 per share. SME companies as Ambition Mica Limited, MD Inducto Cast Limited, Ultracab India Limited, Vidli Restaurants Limited, Lancer Container Lines Limited, DRA Consultants Limited have also rewarded investors with fruitful return. This goes to show that the size of the business doesn't matter, but the quality and potential does.

Encouragement and subsidies from Government for SMEs

Finance is probably the most sensitive area relating to MSME sector. Emergence of SME Exchanges in India has proved out to be a boon for the SMEs who wished to raise funds in the form of equity capital.

Gujarat Government has been promoting SME Capital Markets and encouraging its SME units to raise funds thereon. The Government subsidies 20% of total expenditure incurred on SME IPO, limited maximum upto Rs. 5 Lakhs. The Government reimburses this amount post successful completion of IPO and listing of the SME Company on Stock Exchange Platform. The Government also organizes entrepreneurial skill development program for SMEs.

This scheme encouraged SMEs to opt for raising finance through SME Platforms, which provides an easy access to raise capital ensuring increase in the company's credibility in the market. Government of Gujarat was the first state to have come out with such a scheme for encouraging its SME units to raise growth capital and list on stock exchanges.

Mangalam Seeds Limited (MSL) was the first company to successfully take benefit of this scheme of Government of Gujarat. Following the example of MSL, today Gujarat has contributed significantly to the SME Capital Markets. Total funds raised by Gujarat SMEs on SME Exchanges exceed Rs. 770 crores out of total funds of approximately Rs. 2200 crores raised. Rajasthan Government has also announced a similar policy, to reimburse up to Rs 2.5 lakh towards IPO expenses for SMEs there. Bihar, Maharashtra and West Bengal have reportedly come up with funding schemes for investing into profitable business with growth potential.

Migration Trend

It has been observed that while there is an option to migrate to main board, many companies have chosen not to do so. As out of these 251 SMEs, 31 companies have already migrated and there are many more that are eligible for migration but have stayed on SME Exchange Platform still. More than 50% of listed SMEs which are eligible for migration onto Main Board have preferred to continue being on SME Platforms. This patronage of emerging companies for SME Platforms, is quite healthy and constructive trend, defying a notion that SME Platforms are conduits for easy Mainframe entry. This goes to show that SME Exchange Platforms have as much potential as the Main Board in terms of value.

Conclusion

The outlook for the year 2017 appears to be quite promising and path breaking for SME Capital Market. SME IPOs and listings have picked up pace in first half of 2017 itself with listing of 56 companies and is expected to stay strong in the second half as well. SME capital market is anticipated to be bullish and continue to show an upward trend in number of IPO listings as well. Companies and Promoters across various spectrum of industries and sectors are now willing to get their company open to public at large and adopt transparent governance and business practices and bag multifarious benefits of listing. This is aided by increasing interest of investors in SME companies which can be seen as there are over subscriptions in almost all SME IPOs. We can categorically say that larger area of this segment is still untapped. The journey of SME capital market so far has been quite vibrant and is expected to grow at faster pace in near future.
